PERSONAL AND SOCIETY.

[All society and personal notes for the Sunday issue of the Journal, to secure publication, must be in the hands of the city editor by Saturday

Old ladies say that "if you keep an article seven years you can find a time to use it." if every one remembered and acted upon this saying, what a let of old stuff a house would be filled with. There never was a saying more true, and if one will take the trouble to keep those articles in good condition a use will certainly be found. Years ago a majority of the envelopes containing private correspondence were sealed with wax. Perhaps somewhere around the house a tray with candle, and stamp, and odd bits of wax can be found. If so, it is time to bring it forth, and a new collection of wax-sticks procured. This time the color of the wax has a significance. In the windows of fashionable stationers in Paris and London passers-by will notice rows of sealing-wax of all hues and shades, and ranged in order like the colors of the spectrum. The meaning attached to each is this: White means proposal of marriage; black, death; violet, condolences. Invitations to dinner are sealed with chocolate color; vermillion is used for business letters; ruby color for fortunate lovers. Green means hope, and brown means melancholy. Blue means constancy; yellow, jealousy. Pale green conveys a reproof; pink is used by young ladies, and gray between friends. It is doubtful if any young man will let the world know his state of mind by using white, or if any one inclined to reprove would dare to use a pale green. The chocolate would be quite proper to use, also, for an invitation to any of the tea or chocolate-drinkings which are now included in the list of social gatherings. The brown color, for melancholy, is possibly derived from "brown study;" and as "true blue" means constancy, that is well chosen. "Green with jealousy" does not apply in this selection. A question pertinent to this and the language said to apply to the way in which an umbrella, a fan, a hand-kerchief or any other article may be used to convey expression, would be, can one who is versed in the language of sealing-wax, fan, umbrella or handkerchief, be said to be a linguist?

Mrs. Frank Claypool, of Muncie, who has been the guest of Mrs. Carl Swiggett, has returned home. Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Walker, of Chicago, formerly of this city, are spending a few days here. SILVER WEDDING. Last night the elegant home of Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Harris was the scene of their Mrs. J. E. Harris was the scene of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, and about 150 invited guests were present. Dr. Harris is one of the most prominent physicians in southern Indiana. He and his wife are prominent in church and society circles, and the number present was composed of the most prominent society people in the city. The Doctor was, in his early days, connected with the Louisville Post, and afterwards graduated in the Louisville Medical College. He was married in Kentucky's metropolis in 1866, and soon after removed to Monroe county, where he soon gained a practice worthy of his social and professional standing. Three children have blessed the union, and they, with two grand-children, were present. One of the chief features of the occasion was the refreshments. The list of presents was unusually large, and included many costly tokens. At a late hour the company joined in singing "God Be With You 'Till We Meet Again," which was followed by prayer by Dr. Halstead, of the Collegeavenue M. E. Church. It was after midnight when the guests departed, all wishing the Doctor and his excellent wife a long and pleasant journey toward their golden wedding day.
